San Francisco, March 15.—After one minute and twenty-three seconds of fighting, the heavyweight amateur champion. Sam Berger of San Francisco, knocked put Bill Rickards of Chicago. The men indulged in a few seconds sparring, when Berger landed a left swing to the jaw and Rickards went to the floor for five seconds. He arose, apparently not much damaged. Berger then swung with his right, knocking Rickards out.

The crowd, which packed the pavilion, was very much dissatisfied with the exhibition and hooted Rickards roundly. During the fight he failed to land a blow.

Can a pugilist who has been dazed and sent groggy with a punch be brought back to his normal condition with another blow in a fight? asks the Boston Journal. Australian Jimmy Ryan says yes, and has his own experience to prove it. Ryan, a few years ago, was regarded as one of the best middle-weights in the business. He fought Joe Walcott, Tommy West, Joe Choynski and some of the fastest men in the ring, and if he failed to win, the worst he received in the majority of the contests was a draw.

About seven years ago, when Ryan was in excellent form, he met Joe Choynski in Butte. Owing to the reputation of the men a large crowd turned out to see the combat, and the receipts of that affair, according to Ryan, exceeded over $11,000.

"That fight is indelibly impressed on my mind," said Ryan the other night to a party of friends, the conversation having drifted to some old-time ring battles. "Everybody knows that Choynski can punch. In my opinion, he is one of the stiffest hitters in the game. When I took Choynski on I knew that I was up against it, but as I was in the business for all there was in it. I took a chance. It was in the eighth round of the mill, I remember. We were fightling pretty even up to then, and although I was in poor condition I was getting along very well. After a clinch. Choynski aimed a right hand swing at me. I saw it coming and danced out of the way. But before I knew it I was backing toward the ropes. Before I could get up my guard. Joe landed a heavy right hand blow," and it feli on my Can a pugilist who has been dazed an

Grand Jury Reports.

The federal grand jury made its report yesterday to Judge John A. Marshall and were by him discharged. The portion of the report made public states that one indictment was found and one ignored. A true bill was found against J. C. Peltier, accused of fraudulently passing himself as a postoffice inspector. Peltier is in Texas awalting extradition. The charge against Frank Comer of sending improper matter through the mail was ignored. Comer was at one time a performer in Utahna park theater and while here wrote on a postal card a rather severe letter to some management of an amusement concern in Colorado. at 10 o'clock. when the arguments will be commenced.

Previous to the introduction of testimony yesterday morning Judge Morse made official announcement of the result as shown by the recount. This made Howell's majority III instead of 167—a change of 55 votes in Rolapp's favor.

When the time came for the introduction of testimony by the Howell side they merely submitted this record and rested their case.

The aditional testimony submitted by the Hamer side was on the question of the alleged promise by Howell to get E. G. Burdick the appointment of official stenographer in return for Burdick's support, these promises being made, it is claimed, before election. The first witness was B. F. Thomas, who testified that E. G. Burdick asked him to go to Howell and urge the appointment of Burdick as court stenographer in case that Howell should be elected. Thomas did see Howell, who told him that if he should be elected "Burdick would have nothing to fear."

DANGER OF

Every Effort Should be Made to Cure the Lungs-The Peril is There.

A cough is the beginning of diseased lungs. Syrups can no more core lungs than cough drops can. You must cure your lungs. Pneumonia and consumption germs enter them every day. Keep them healthy and they cast off the germs. When you have a cough the germs cling and bite.

For half a century the best prescription of a famous English physician, Dr. Acker, has been curing lungs. It is not a cough syrup. You can get nothing to take its place—there's nothing at all like it. As soon as you take it you teel the glow of healthy action come over your lungs. They throw off impurities and are soothed, cured, made strong and perfect. Remember—hundreds of cough syrups, but only one great lung cure—Dr. Acker's English Remedy. It cures your cough and cold first, of course.
